Family Law

Biography

Judy Hayman joined the family law practice group at Eastburn and Gray in 2005. She is a resident of the firm's Doylestown office and focuses her practice on all family law-related matters including: adoption, child custody, divorce, equitable distribution, pre-nuptial agreements, property settlement agreements, protection from abuse, and child support. She frequently represents clients in Family Court in Bucks, Philadelphia and Montgomery Counties in Pennsylvania. She regularly litigates matters related to divorce, custody and support on behalf of her clients.

Judy often works with clients who choose to resolve their conflicts by alternative dispute resolution. As an alternative to resolving issues in the courtroom, she is a trained Collaborative Divorce Attorney and Mediator. Through these alternative dispute resolution processes, she facilitates solutions to family conflicts in a non-adversarial manner.

Memberships

A member of the Bucks County Bar Association and the Pennsylvania Bar Association, Judy is affiliated with the Family Law sections of each association. She has provided attorney coaching for the Pennsylvania Bar Association's Young Lawyer's Division Mock Trial program.

Bar Admission

Judy is admitted to practice in Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Education

Judy attended Bucks County Community College and went on to receive her bachelor's degree in American Studies from the University of Delaware. She attended graduate school for American Studies at the College of William and Mary. Judy enjoyed a first career in non-profit management spent primarily in museums. While working in the museum field, she attended Temple University Beasley School of Law and served in the Temple Legal Aid Office providing pro bono representation for Philadelphia families with child custody and support issues. While in law school, Judy participated in Temple's Law Abroad Program in Athens, Greece and Penn State - Dickinson's Law School Summer Abroad Program, "Capitals of Europe" at The Hague, Brussels, Luxembourg, Strasbourg and Vienna. She graduated from Temple Law School and achieved the award for achievement in Property Law.
